Editorial Ethics:

JARH follows Ethical Guidelines for Journal given by HEC Islamabad and COPE Publication Ethics available for authors, reviewers, publishers, and editors guidelines at https://publicationethics.org/guidance/Guidelines;

Plagiarism Policy

JARH follows the plagiarism policy of the Higher Education Commission (HEC) Pakistan. Manuscripts are to be original and must not be plagiarized. Each submission is checked for plagiarism by Turnitin. If Similarity is above 19% then it is sent back to revise accordingly. If in any case, it is come to know after publication, that manuscript will be immediately removed from the website and the authors will be stamped barred.

The publication process is as follows:

- The submitted manuscript is acknowledged within 24 hours upon receipt through the automatically generated response of OJS.
- The manuscript/paper is sent to two reviewers without the name and affiliations of the author(s). The review process takes about two weeks.
- The review reports are collected from the reviewers and the Managing Editor sends the review reports to the authors including all terms and conditions of the publication.
- If the paper is accepted, the Managing Editor sends a positive response to the authors. If the paper is accepted subject to modification, the Managing Editor will send the review reports to the authors including a formal request to modify the paper by seven days as per the suggestions of the reviewers. The corresponding author sends the modified paper to the same Managing Editor and the editor forwards it again to the concerned reviewers of the said paper to justify the modifications. If the paper fails to satisfy the reviewers this time also, then the article is said to be finally rejected. The journal does not proceed with the said paper. However, in case of minor changes, the editor-in-chief may consider the paper for further modifications on the recommendation of the Managing Editor.
- The accepted paper is processed for publication upon the successful completion of the journal's terms and conditions. The acceptance letter is issued within five days after the acceptance of the article and fulfillment of all journal's requirements.
- Proofreading: Before publishing the processed article, the editor asks the author for any final proofreading, if not, the paper is forwarded to the copyeditor. After copyediting as per the format of JARH, the paper is forwarded to the editor for publication.
- The paper is published online first. The editor-in-chief will notify the authors about the online publication with the necessary download link. The authors may request any correction in the published paper (in case of extremely important changes) within three days of online publication.
- The journal is published in print form within two weeks after the online publication.
- The authors of the published papers will send their correct and complete postal address along with the proper ZIP Code and postal code by three days after print publication through email, the then the hard copy will be posted to the concerned authors.
- The editor will send the hard copy of the journal to those authors within one month after print publication.
